Question 10: When Do You Want Your Pension to Start?

You can begin receiving your retirement pension anytime after turning 60 years of age.

Reduced Pension: from Age 60 to Age 65

Your retirement pension is reduced by a set percentage for each month before age 65 that you choose to begin receiving it. This reduction is permanent.

From 2012 to 2016, the amount of this reduction will gradually increase from 0.52% to 0.6% per month. This means that if you start receiving your retirement pension in 2016 at age 60, it will be 36% less than if you had taken it at 65. The reduction percentage that is in effect the year your retirement pension commences remains in effect for as long as you receive the benefit, and will not change. Your pension may increase each year based on changes in the Consumer Price Index.

Year	% of monthly reduction	Maximum reduction (if pension is taken at age 60)
2012	0.52	31.2%
2013	0.54	32.4%
2014	0.56	33.6%
2015	0.58	34.8%
2016	0.60	36%

Information Sheet for the Canada Pension Plan Retirement Pension

Your retirement pension starts the month after we receive your application (or at a later date, if you indicate one on your application). The earliest you can begin receiving it is the month after your 60th birthday.

Full Pension: at Age 65

If you start receiving your pension at age 65, you will get the full pension amount you are entitled to receive, based on your earnings and contributions. Your pension will start the month after your 65th birthday.

Increased Pension: After the Age of 65

Your retirement pension is increased by a set percentage for each month after age 65 that you delay receiving it, until age 70.

From 2012 to 2013, the amount of this increase will gradually rise from 0.64% to 0.7% per month. This means that if you start receiving your CPP retirement pension in 2013 at age 70, it will be 42% more than if you had taken it at 65.

Year	% of monthly increase	Maximum increase (if pension is taken at age 70)
2012	0.64	38.4%
2013	0.70	42%

If you are applying after your 65th birthday, you can choose to receive retroactive pension payments, but they cannot begin earlier than the month after your 65th birthday. In general, we can make retroactive payments of CPP benefits for up to 12 months (11 months plus the month you apply).

If you delay applying for your CPP retirement pension after you turn 70, you risk losing benefits. There is no financial benefit in delaying your pension after age 70.

How to Decide When to Take Your Retirement Pension

The decision is yours, and depends on your personal circumstances. You should consider the following:

- how much and how long you have paid into the CPP so far;
- your other retirement income;
- if you have a company pension plan (check with your employer to see if it will be affected by your CPP pension);
- whether or not you will work after the age of 60;
- your current health and family health history; and
- your retirement plans.

You should carefully consider your personal situation when deciding when to start your CPP retirement pension.

The Canada Pension Plan's Post-Retirement Benefit

You may be eligible for a Post-Retirement Benefit if you are 60 to 70 years of age and you are working or return to work in Canada (outside Quebec) while receiving a retirement pension from the Canada Pension Plan or Quebec Pension Plan.

The Post-Retirement Benefit will allow you to increase your retirement income even if you are already receiving the maximum Canada Pension Plan pension amount. It is a secure monthly benefit that will rise with increases in the cost of living and be payable for the rest of your life.

You do not need to apply for the Post-Retirement Benefit. If you are eligible, it will be paid to you automatically.

For each year that you make a valid contribution to the Canada Pension Plan while receiving your retirement pension, you become eligible for a new Post-Retirement Benefit the following January. Like the Canada Pension Plan retirement pension, the amount of each Post-Retirement Benefit will depend on your level of earnings, the amount of Canada Pension Plan contributions you made during the previous year, and your age as of the effective date of the Post-Retirement Benefit.

Each new Post-Retirement Benefit will be added to any previously earned Post-Retirement Benefits and to any other Canada Pension Plan benefits to which you are entitled.

Contributions to the Post-Retirement Benefit are mandatory for working CPP retirement pension recipients under age 65 and their employers. If you are self-employed, you will have to contribute both the employee and employer portions.

If you work in the same year that your retirement pension begins, we will determine which portion of that year's contributions will go toward the retirement pension and which portion, if any, will go toward the Post-Retirement Benefit.

If you are at least 65 years of age, you can choose not to contribute. At age 70, you are no longer able to contribute. To find out more about how to stop contributing to the CPP, visit the Canada Revenue Agency Web site at www.cra.gc.ca/cpp or call 1-800-959-8281.

Contributions to the Post-Retirement Benefit do not create eligibility for, or increase the amount of, other Canada Pension Plan benefits, and a Post-Retirement Benefit cannot be divided with a former spouse (credit splitting) or shared with a current spouse (pension sharing).

For more information on the Post-Retirement Benefit, please visit our Web site at www.servicecanada.gc.ca/cppchanges.

If you work in Quebec while receiving a Canada Pension Plan or Quebec Pension Plan retirement pension, you can contact Retraite Québec to find out more about contributions to the Quebec Pension Plan retirement pension supplement (visit www.retraitequebec.gouv.qc.ca or call 1-800-463-5185).

When to Apply

We suggest you apply about six months before you want your pension to start.

Question 11A: Children Born After 1958

If you have children born after 1958, the child-rearing provision may help you receive a higher Canada Pension Plan benefit amount. The amount of benefits paid under the Canada Pension Plan is based on how long and how much you contributed to the Plan while you were working and, in some cases, your age when your benefit begins. Periods of time when you had no or low earnings usually result in a lower benefit amount.

If you were not working or had low earnings while caring for a child under the age of seven, the child-rearing provision can be used to exclude these time periods from the calculation of your benefit. This may help you qualify for benefits or increase the benefit amount you can receive.

To qualify for the child-rearing provision:

- you must have either not worked or had low earnings while being the primary caregiver* of a child under the age of seven who was born after December 31, 1958;
- you or your spouse / common-law partner must have received Family Allowance payments or been eligible for the Canada Child Tax Benefit (even if you did not receive the benefit); and
- you must provide proof of birth for each child listed, if a Social Insurance Number is not provided. If a child was born outside Canada, proof of the child's entry into Canada must be provided as well.

* The primary caregiver is the person who spent the most time caring for the daily needs of the child, such as supervision, preparation of meals, school attendance, doctor appointments, etc.

 If you were the primary caregiver of a child and did not receive the Canada Child Tax Benefit only because your family income was too high, you are considered to have been eligible for the Canada Child Tax Benefit.

Family Allowance

The Family Allowance program (commonly referred to as the “baby bonus”) paid a monthly cheque to parents or guardians of dependent children under the age of 18. In most families, payments were issued to the mother. The Family Allowance program was replaced by the Canada Child Tax Benefit in 1993.

Canada Child Tax Benefit (CCTB)

The Canada Child Tax Benefit (CCTB) is a monthly benefit administered by the Canada Revenue Agency. The amount of the CCTB is based on your net family income, the number of children you have, and the ages of your children. You might have been considered eligible for the CCTB even if you did not receive it. For more information about the CCTB, please contact the Canada Revenue Agency at www.cra-arc.gc.ca.

Question 11B: Waiver of Rights to the Child-Rearing Provision

If you remained at home to care for a child under age seven but your spouse received Family Allowance payments, your spouse can waive their rights in your favour. This means your spouse foregoes his or her rights to the child-rearing provision, since it cannot be used by both you and your spouse for the same time periods and the same children. To waive his or her rights, your spouse has to complete and sign Question 11B of your application.

Please note if your spouse or common-law partner received Canada Child Tax Benefit payments but you were actually the primary caregiver of the child, you may be eligible for the child-rearing provision. To be considered, you will need to provide a letter from the Canada Revenue Agency indicating that you would have been eligible for the Canada Child Tax Benefit while you were the primary caregiver for the child. If this situation applies, please contact the Canada Revenue Agency, www.cra-arc.gc.ca, for more information about obtaining this letter.

Question 12: Voluntary Income Tax Deduction

Your Canada Pension Plan retirement pension is taxable. Fill out Question 12 if you would like to have us take off monthly voluntary income tax deductions from your Canada Pension Plan retirement pension. You should consider your personal tax situation before choosing an amount. If you decide to have us withhold voluntary income tax deductions, you may request an amount or percentage now, and have it changed at a later date. This service is available to Canadian residents only.

Question 15: Disability

You may be eligible to receive a CPP disability benefit if:

- you are under the age of 65;
- you have earned a specified minimum amount and contributed to the CPP while working for a minimum number of years; and
- you are deemed disabled, as defined by the CPP legislation, before the effective date of your retirement pension.

If this applies to you and you have been receiving your CPP retirement pension for less than 15 months, please contact us as soon as possible for more information.

If you meet the above criteria and are granted a disability benefit, you must make a written request to cancel your retirement pension in favour of the disability benefit.

Any retirement pension payments you have already received may be deducted from your disability benefit. For more information on the CPP disability benefit, contact us to order the brochure called Disability Benefits - Canada Pension Plan, or visit our Web site at www.servicecanada.gc.ca.

This photocopy is a true copy of the original document which has not been altered in any way.

Note: If your photocopy is missing any of the above elements, it will not be accepted and you will have to submit a new, properly certified photocopy, which will result in delays in processing your application.

If an original document has information on both sides, both sides must be photocopied and certified.

You cannot certify photocopies of your own documents and you cannot ask a relative to do it for you.

Please write the Client Identification Number or Social Insurance Number on any document or photocopy that you send us.
